It is the student's responsibility to have his/her financial situation in order prior to entering the University. The University does not have provisions to accommodate students arriving with insufficient funds. Students not complying are in jeopardy of invalidating their immigration status and can be subject to deportation.

To maintain legal non-immigrant status, undergraduate students must enroll for a minimum of 12 semester credit hours and graduate students must enroll for a minimum 9 semester credit hours. Non-compliance with these regulations will jeopardize immigration status and can lead to deportation.

I have read the above paragraphs and certify that I, the applicant, have sufficient funds to defray all expenses mentioned above.
