Welcome to the next generation of study abroad!

Imagine students and their professors working together in a cooperative setting as unique and engaging as each of its members. As a participant in the MTSU Costa Rica program, you will do more than just study abroad. You will be part of a community of learners seeking a fresh perspective in an interconnected world. Because of the cooperative nature of this project, participation is limited to 24 students. What will you bring to the table?

Costa Rica is a strongly democratic and forward-thinking country in Central America, and an important center of business and culture. Costa Ricans enjoy one of the highest standards of living in Latin America.

The program is based in Heredia, a medium-sized university town (pop. 140,000) just 15 miles from the capital city, San José. Heredia is near the geographic center of the country, making for easy excursions to both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, as well as the lush rainforests of the country's interior.
